

James D. Veltrop

PARTNER

Jim Veltrop practices primarily in the areas of intellectual property counseling and complex litigation. He chairs the firm's Intellectual Property and BioMedical Practice Groups.

Mr. Veltrop's counseling practice includes the evaluation of patent, trademark and trade secret claims and the provision of opinions regarding infringement and validity. He is extensively involved in the product development process, including assisting clients in navigating around the intellectual property rights of competitors and in designing their own patent strategies. As head of the firm's BioMedical Practice Group, he counsels clients regarding patent, Hatch-Waxman and antitrust issues raised by the development and marketing of new and generic drug products.
